

Re: Docket# 98N-1038, "Irradiation in the Production, Processing, and Handling of Food."

I want the FDA to continue prominent labeling of food that has been treated with irradiation. The label should be conspicuous and include the logo for irradiation.

If consumers value the information that labeling provides, then the law should require it. Recycled oil is absolutely identical to first-refined oil (motor oil) and there is no scientific reason to label it differently. But consumers should be free to discriminate on bases that mean something to them. So by law, motor oil that is recycled must be labeled as such.

I am shocked that the FDA is even considering less-stringent requirements for what we put into our bodies, ESPECIALLY since the science of nutrition and medicine is far from complete. 4/27/99
